

POLISHED MAN PRIVACY POLICY

1.0 Objective

Polished Man is committed to protecting your privacy. Our Policy reflects the changes in the Privacy Act 1988 that came into effect 12 March 2014.

2.0 Scope

This policy sets out how Polished Man (we) will handle (collect, use, store and disclose) personal information in accordance with the National Privacy Principles under the Australian Privacy Act 1988 (Privacy law) and the Privacy Amendment (Enhancing Privacy Protection) Act 2012. It describes how we will do this in light of who we are and our mission to raise funds to support our work and our vision of a world without poverty.

You can find out more about the National Privacy Principles by calling the Office of the Information Commissioner on 1300 363 992 or through their website at www.oaic.gov.au.

Polished Man is committed to protecting your privacy and we are bound by the Australian Privacy Principles in the Privacy Amendment (Enhancing Privacy Protection) Act 2012.

We collect, store and use some of your personal information so we can help those living in poverty. Only authorised staff have access to your personal information: it remains confidential and is only used for appropriate purposes and in accordance with this policy.

Unless you give us consent to do otherwise, we will only collect and use your personal information as set out in this policy.

3.0 Policy

Data collection

The types of personal information we may collect

The kind of personal information we collect and store depends on the type of Polished Man initiatives you support or enquire about. Personal information collected by Polished Man may include:

- your identification and contact information - name, address, email address, phone number, mobile phone number;
- your date of birth, gender, income, occupation;
- your donation and payment details;
- where relevant, your employer details (for example if you participate in workplace giving);
- a history of your transactions, correspondences and interactions with Polished Man if relevant, and details about your personal interests.

Please note, if you choose not to provide us with certain personal information, we may not be able to process your donation or provide the information you request. Of course, you always have the right to request us to remove your details from our database.

How we collect information

There are a number of ways we collect information from you. These include:

- directly from you when you provide information by phone, in person, via our website, or response forms;
- from our own records of your transactions and interactions with Polished Man;
- from publicly available sources of information;
- from third parties who organise fundraising activities on our behalf. These parties are also bound by the Australian Privacy Principles;
- from a third party known to you who makes a donation and nominates you as the recipient of communication regarding that donation.
- face to face communication or when you correspond with us via email, online surveys, social media messages, voice messages or image recordings.

How we use your information

Your personal information may be used:

- for the immediate reason for which you have given it: for example, to enable us to process your request (e.g. gift, payment, registration, subscription, change of details) including issuing you with a donation receipt;
- to maintain contact with you about the Polished Man campaign, encourage you to learn about and further support our work;
- to confirm your identity when you make enquiries about your donation;
- to address any feedback or complaints you may have and to answer your queries.

It may also be used for:

- any purposes for which the information was requested;
- purposes directly related to the above purposes.

Your information will not be used for any purpose to which you would not reasonably expect us to use the information provided.

We will not disclose your personal information to other organisations except for our core business purposes with the Polished Man campaign. Most importantly, we will not rent or sell your personal information.

In order to reduce operating and administrative costs, we may securely transfer data to organisations located outside of Australia to produce printed material and electronic communications. These organisations must also comply with, and not breach, the Australian Privacy Principles and are bound by tight agreements which protect your privacy.

If you wish to reduce such mailings please call, email or write to us at the address listed at the end of this policy.

We will take all reasonable steps to ensure any external organisations we partner with are contractually bound to privacy and confidentiality obligations in relation to your personal information and that it is only used for the specific purpose for which we disclose it. These organisations are also bound to adhere to the privacy requirements under the relevant legislation and are bound to destroy or de-identify information after using it for a specific activity.

In addition to the external organisations which help facilitate our correspondence and fundraising activities with you, we may disclose your personal information to:

- an authorised legal representative nominated by you;
- our accountants, auditors and lawyers;
- government authorities if/when legally required to do so.

How long do we keep your information?

We will keep and use your information after you have provided a donation or interacted in some other way with Polished Man. How long we hold and use the information after you have ceased donating or interacting with us will depend on the type of interaction you had with Polished Man and any requirements under law.

It is also our policy to:

- permanently de-identify personal information where reasonable and possible;
- destroy personal information once there is no longer a legal or business need for us to retain it.
